THE widow of James Fisk, jr., (Prince Erie) is said to be living in retirement with the family of a certain police captain in Boston, and to be in a somewhat impoverished condition.

This story, of course, comes from Boston. Scene-A street-car, crowded as usual. A lady gets in ; again, as usual, nobody rises to give her a seat, no as usual. She glares around the car and says, "How I do hate impolite men!" "So do 1," answered a gentleman who was balancing himself on another gentleman's iap. "Here, miss—or madam—take my place."

THE London Speciator waxes fearful. It dreads a reaction in the present esthelic furor. "Our strong conviction," it says, "is that next year the crimson peony will be the rage, and our secret fear is that then the highest aim of women in dress, so far as regards colors, will be to achieve a complete resemblance to a freshty-painted, scarlet-colored. pillar letter-box. Already they have adopted that "I DECLARE If there isn't the deacon's daughter out with a bran new shawl. Well, I never." "Hush!" said a better-informed female; "'tisn't "Hush." said a better-informed female; "'tisn't hers. It's one she borrowed from the company that's visiting over t' the deacon's." "Well, there's one thing I know. She can't depend on borrowing to look well in heaven, She'll have to wear her own augel plumage when she gets there." And they both bowed their heads as the minister opened the services.—New Haven Register.

"I wonder what has become of the seissors?" "I WONDER what has become of the scissors" said Mrs. Johnson, the other day: "I have been looking for them all the evening and can't find them high or low." After awhile the hired Dutchman, commenced pulling off his boots, preparatory to going to bed. "All dis day," said he, "I tink I got some little grabble stones in my poot. I kess I kit out how." When he turned up his boot all that he could find in it was a thimble, a pair of scissors, half alonf of bread, and a few dozen tacks.

change, and did not know that they were sailing under a band of Amazons. The regular landings were made as usual, and when the steamer reached darshall Hall on her return trip a treaty was made by which she was to be restored to her late commander, in consideration of his good looks and upon condition that the party should land at that place, the captain to call for them when he made his regular Saturday evening trip. The "Pirates" passed a very pleasant day at the Hall, enpassed a very preasant day at the Hall, en-joying themselves in various ways. The steamer arrived as per treaty, and the party embarked for home, arriving at the wharf about ten o'clock. All were pleased with the day's enjoyment. It is deemed best to give the names of the "Pirates," so far as they can be ascertained, that the public may be on the alert for them and that they may be captured as soon as is not a foreigner; and third, that he is a Christian possible. They are Lillie Lewis, Alma Walker, Now, because an intelligent American Christian Helen Pifferling, Lulu Twombly, Lillie Coggins, tries to murder the President, this parson says that Alice and Mamie Drancy, Minnie Lansburgh, Rena and Maude Sharpe, Ida Lewis, and the two little elocutionists, Annie Lewis and Marguerite Spalding. Little Annie favored those on board by ren dering, in her unapproachable style, "Some Mother" and "The Dutchman's Fall." Marguerite declined to recite any of her pieces, A quartette club on board gave some most excel-lent music. The Dutch imitations by one of its members were simply immense. Altogether, the day was one of perfect pleasure and one long to be Sitting Bull's Children.

Sitting Bull is forty-seven years of age, and has seven children, among them two pairs of twins, the younger being four winters old. Their names are: Woc-a-na-pa-pa, or The One Whose Heart is Changed. In one of the battles with Miles another child was left upon the field, and therefore its name is They Fled and Left Him. A third is called Paparorepa-Swea, meaning one whose heart is brave, or he who stands and fights. Crowfoot, a seven-year-old boy, was designated by the old warrior to surrender his arms. 'He is a bright little fellow, a twin of the child Who Brings Word from the Lodges, so named from Important intelligence brought by the little fellow from the distant lodges during one of the most exciting campaigns. A ourteen-year-old daughter is named She Who Glances at You as She Walks, from her disposition flirt, it is presumed. A seventeen-year-old daughter is named Shookraota, The Woman with Many Horses, and another Standing Medicine Woman. Mrs. Sitting Bull is about forty-five years old, and a fine type of Indian beauty.-Chicago

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

iteek and Bond Quotations-Baltimor and New York Produce Markets.

The following observations on the transactions in the financial market Saturday, together with opening, highest, lowest, and closing quota-tions, are turnished by the banking-house of H. D. Cooke, P., & Co., 1429 F street, Washington, D. C.: New York, Aug. 6, 3:10 p. m.—The market has been to day the same as for several days past dull and uninteresting. The report of reduction on West-bound freights and the loss of reserve by the banks had no effect on prices; in fact, the market shows a slight advance. Not with standing these facts the husiness has been smaller than on any day for months past, the intense heat having driven many people from town. Money continues to rule easy at 3 per cent, on call and 4 to 5 on New York, Aug. 6, 9:50 a. m .- The tenor of the general discussion on the stock market at Long Branch last night was rather indicative of a lower range of prices this morning, with a probability of a higher market later in the day. The condition of the weather and its effect upon the various crops was much talked about. Cammack said J. K. Fisher had telegraphed him from Chicago that crops was much talked about. Cammack said J. K. Fisher had telegraphed him from Chicago that the rain-storm in the corn belt of yesterday and the day before had not been benekelal, because it came too late to resuscitate the late plant, and other crops had been damaged by it, especially those now being harvested. The bear party were generally arguing that the storms in the West and South, logether with the extraordinary heat, would cause incalculable loss. Sage was quoted as having stated that be looked for no advance of importance immediately, but to his friends he expressed the opinion that the market had already yielded as much as it ought. Others thought that the market had been harded when the state of the common state of the property of the state and state of the state species.

12:5p.m.—According to a Philadelphia dispatch, advance slips of the Cost and Iron Journal report a very fair business in anthracite, but not large enough to take the immense production now under way. Prices have not yielded. There is a good Western demand, but the local demand is quiet. It is the general opinion that a curtailment of production this month is necessary to hold the demand and prices. The iron trade continues satisfactory. There have been some advances in all departments. Prices are firm. There has never been so much business at this season before.

The Gastrie Juice, when vitiated, as it always is in dyspepsia, poisons instead of acting as a solvent of the food, which decomposes in the stomach, giving birth to an acid that, rising in the throat, stings the palate and that, rising in the throat stings the palate and causes the exceeding unpleasant sensation called heartburn. Carbonate of soda and other means are often resorted to for the purpose of remedying this, but with no permanent good effect. The wiser way is to cradidate the atrocious disease which originates this and a hundred other harmsning symptoms.
